Farmers Welcome Rain That Rapidly Raises River Levels

Sections of Elbow Park District of Calgary Under Water; Rain Ceased To-day After Day and Half of Downpour

Precipitation Is Heaviest in Years

Canadian Press

Calgary, June 2.—Rain had ceased falling in central and southern parts of Alberta to-day and flood dangers at Calgary and Bragg Creek were somewhat relieved. The waters of the Bow and Elbow rivers, however, were above normal and several properties in the fashionable Elbow Park district of Calgary were submerged.

Rain that started Tuesday afternoon and continued until yesterday evening caused the rise of the rivers. The Elbow rose three and one-half feet and the Bow two feet. Heavy precipitation in the Rocky Mountains added to the flood danger as the swirling waters flooded through the Calgary streets.

Worried households could rise of only a few inches more would cause flooding of basements. Railway officials also were worried by the heavy precipitation, which flooded a bridge at the town of Camrose, blocking the line of way and causing a Canadian Pacific train No. 2 arriving in Calgary three hours late from Vancouver.

Three BRIDGES WASHED OUT

—Yesterday evening residents of Bragg Creek, near here, battled the swollen waters of the creek for hours. The creek rose almost three feet in two hours as a heavy downpour of rain drenched the countryside. Three bridges were washed out and four houses flooded; ten people were forced to leave.

Kingsford-Smith of Australia Among Those Included in King's Birthday Honors

Canadian Press

London, June 2.—A knighthood for Air Commodore Charles Edward Kingsford-Smith, the famous Australian aviator, was among the most interesting appointments in the King's birthday honors list, published this evening.

Robert H. Davis, inventor of submarine escape device, which saved several lives last year when the British submarine Hood sank in the China Seas, also becomes a knight.

The King will be sixty-seven years old to-morrow.

Among other interesting personalities of the list is Henry Neville Gladstone, son of the "grand old man," who is made a baron from "political and public services." He is eighty years of age.

Literature is recognized by the award of the Companion of Honor of the Order of the Bath to Laurence Binyon, the poet, and E. V. Lucas, the author.

Lady Bacon-Powell, head of the Girl Guides, becomes a dame of the Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

Simultaneously with publication of the list it was announced the King had approved appointment of the Prince of Wales as honorary air commodore-in-chief of the Royal Air Force, the auxiliary force. He also approved promotion of the Duke of York from group captain to air vice-marshall in the Royal Air Force.

Berlin, June 2.—President Paul von Hindenburg summoned the new German cabinet, headed by Count Franz von Papen to meet at the presidential palace at 5:30 p.m. to-day and there the minister took the oath.

The formal swearing of the new ministry was followed at 6 p.m. by its first session in the chancellery.

The cabinet list, completed in skeleton, yesterday, was filled in to-day with the acceptance of Baron Constantin von Neurath, German Ambassador to Great Britain, as Foreign Minister; Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk as Finance Minister and Franz Goettner as Minister of Justice.

Search Made For Plane Not Missing

After the mail plane of the German liner Europa, New York bound, had been catapulted from the ship a week ago, SOS calls were heard and a search was made for the machine, which was reported in distress floating on the Atlantic. Will Make Cruise to Alaska Before Attending Rotary International Convention

"Throughout the west I have noticed a most encouraging spirit among all classes of people and this augurs well, in my opinion, for a gradual return to better times," said J. P. Patterson, president of Norris-Patterson Limited, well-known Canadian advertising agency with headquarters in Toronto, who is at the Beach Hotel to-day with Mrs. Patterson.

"I have not been on the coast for eight years and I must say that the progressive spirit of the western people is particularly noticeable," he said.

"Remarkable development has taken place both in Victoria and Vancouver."

Mr. Patterson is spending a short time in the city prior to taking a cruise to Alaska. He will return in time to attend the convention of Rotary International at Seattle.

Mr. Patterson is a brother of W. A. Patterson, advertising manager of The Victoria Daily Times.

JAPAN APPEALS TO RUSSIANS

Premier Urges Soviet to Cease Massing Troops in Eastern Siberia

By GLENN BARR
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

Tokio, June 2.—Viscount Minoru Saito, Japanese Premier and Foreign Minister, to-day asserted in a written statement there was absolutely no danger of war between this country and Soviet Russia.

The Japanese Government has stated repeatedly that no danger of war with the Soviet Union exists," he said. "The attitude of the Soviet Government respecting affairs in Manchuria has been perfectly clear and only with the Soviet Government might see a way to reprove such a further measure of confidence in Japan's immigration bureau for nearly ten years.

Hundreds of Canadians who entered the United States for visits between 1921 and 1924, paying the headtax and then overstayed their leaves and took up residence here, now are barred from returning if they visit Canada.

Under the old rule, such persons were considered legal residents of the United States and could travel between this country and Canada at will.

School Children Of Victoria Make Fine Showing In Display

"Open Day" Attracts Huge Crowd to Royal Athletic Park to See Folk Dances and Calisthenics Demonstrated By Pupils

LARGEST SHOW ATTEMPTED HERE

Major A. C. Hinton, Physical Training Supervisor For Victoria, in Charge of Programme, Which 3,000 Parents Enjoyed

Demonstrating in forceful and effective fashion the physical training work done in the city schools, the "open day" for Victoria students staged at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday afternoon was acclaimed a triumph of organization and a tribute to the sponsors by approximately 3,000 people who witnessed the display.

Two-thirds of the city's 6,000 school children took part in the event, which was directed by Major A. C. Hinton, physical training supervisor, in conjunction with the teachers and instructors, and the Victoria School Board.

The whole thing was done on a mass scale. It was the most ambitious display of its kind ever attempted here and the continuous applause of the large group of spectators testified to its success.

SHOWS SCHOOL WORK

In the main the programme was drawn up with the idea of showing what is being done in the public schools as regards calisthenics and folk dancing. It had a wider effect, however, in that it brought together children from all over the city into one huge gathering which typified the rising generation of Victoria.

Children from seven to seventeen years of age participated in the events which were of all kinds, other like the movements of a well-trained army. In groups of from 300 to 700 the various exercises were performed and as one contingent left the ground another took its place, like waves sweeping on to a sandy shore. There seemed to be a continuous progression of boys and girls throughout the afternoon.

Although each one of the individual performances deserves special praise the most interesting part of the programme was the march past, which followed the massed singing of "O Canada" at the opening. Trustee George Jay, veteran chairman of the School Board, after whom the George Jay School is named, stood on a platform in front of the grandstand to receive the salute of the 3,000 children as they passed in review. Trustee P. E. George, Lieutenant-Colonel of the cadet corps, and Major T. R. Wheeldon stood beside him.

Headed by the 38th Cadet Battalion band under the direction of George Green, the cadets led the march past. Armed in the uniform of navy blue trousers with white stripe, white shirts and blue cap hats adopted last year for the corps, they made an impressive display. Behind them went the grade school children, the tiny girls in flimsy flower frocks and the elder girls in smart uniforms of blue skirts and white middies with navy collars. The smaller boys all had white shirts and well-brushed hair for the occasion.

LONG PARADE

So long was the procession, it took between fifteen and twenty minutes to pass the salute stand to marching bands supplied by the Victoria Fire Department Band.

While the last group of children were marching past the stand, the cadet battalion was opening out on the ground, marked off in squares, for the physical training display, Joseph Ross, the instructor, took his position on a raised stand in the front and directed the exercises.

There were 425 boys in the older group, including fifty from Oaklands School, thirty from Margaret Jenkins, fifty from George Jay, seventeen from North Ward, eighty from South Park and forty-five from Sir James Douglas. A party from North Ward School carried the colors for the march past.

In absolute unison the physical training exercises were carried out, the whole group performing as one man. They drew thunderous applause.

MAYPOLE DANCE

From the standpoint of the picturesque and artistic, the maypole dance which followed was the finest of the day. Three hundred girls under the age of ten years took part and were a credit to their directors and instructors. To the tune of "King Hal" supplied by the Firemen's Band, they danced around fifteen maypoles with an unusually pretty effect.

Fourteen schools were represented in this dance.

As the maypoles were carried out of the enclosure, 400 children of grades three and four advanced to the square section and were put through their physical training paces by Major Hinton.

The tiny tots proved themselves as well acquainted with the exercises as their older schoolmates.

The High School contingent, 800 strong, marched on to the field next to the cadets and the girls under Miss Mona Miller, were joined by a group from St. Margaret's School under Miss Kemp. The folk dance "If all the World Were Paper," the band accompanying. These girls were London. — It would appear that which controls the men's sport would have none of it. So Ivy challenged Miss Tillie Tinnmouth, an artist model of Sunderland, and, winning, now claims to be the first British woman weight-lifting champion.

With one hand Ivy lifted up a 300-pound weight; with two she raised 644½ pounds. Later with one out-stretched arm she lifted a ninety-nine-pound bar over her head.

She weighs only nine stone and took to weight lifting after finding that boxing was too tame a sport. Ivy and Tilly delighted a large crowd by their grace and their perfect proportions.

Purple Star Lodge.—The Purple Star Lodge held its regular monthly meeting yesterday evening with Mrs. W. E. Skett in the chair, assisted by Mrs. E. Hume. Encouraging reports were submitted by committees and following the business a programme was rendered. Miss E. Harper and Miss Olive Edwards contributed vocal solos; Miss E. Kendall and W. Nelson, piano solos, and Miss D. Alexander and Miss I. Holness tap and acrobatic dances. The winners of the contest were Miss I. Holness and Mr. F. Joyce.

RASH FOLLOWS BROKER'S DEATH

Canadian Press
Montreal, June 2.—Craig, Luther and company, stockbrokers, were petitioned into bankruptcy to-day on behalf of a client whose name was not then disclosed. The firm was immediately suspended from trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange and the Montreal Stock market. The suspension followed shortly after the death on Monday of W. E. Luther, one of the partners. Mr. Luther's death was attributed to the effects of a coronary artery to natural causes. The body was found in the cage attached to his summer home, Hudson Heights, Que.

Robert Wilson, custodian of the state, issued the following statement: "Mr. Luther's sudden and untimely death, which automatically dissolved the partnership together with heavy losses, was due to his declining ability to meet maturing calls and other difficulties besetting the stock brokerage business under existing trading conditions, made it impossible for the remaining partners to continue the business."

The heavy fall in prices of securities has so depleted margins that the ability to the public will not be serious, probably not in excess of

Chemical Industries Growing in Canada

Canadian Press
Hamilton, Ont., June 2.—Despite prevailing business conditions, the term of the year, the Canadian chemical industry has shown a marked increase in the manufacture of toilet preparations. Flavoring extracts, polishes and dressings showed small increases during 1931, it is revealed in the report prepared for "Canadian Chemistry and Metallurgy" by W. H. Losse, chief of mining, metallurgical and chemical branch, Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Given at McMaster University, where nearly 500 chemists from all parts of the Dominion are attending the annual convention of the Canadian Chemical Association, the survey for 1931 showed that capital employed in the chemical industry totalled $161,063,565, up 4 per cent below the corresponding figure for 1930. Approximately 100,000 workers, or 5 per cent of Canada's population, are dependent for their support on chemical manufacturers or chemical process industries.

VOGET QUILTS AS PRESIDENT

Appointment of Successor

Special to The Times
Duncan, June 2.—The annual general meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce was held in the Agricultural building Tuesday evening with H. B. Vogel in the chair. The secretary presented the financial statement. The president gave a report of the year's activities.

Reports from chairmen of committees were presented and adopted. Correspondence was read, including a letter from the city stating the grant this year would be $50, instead of $100. Election of officers then took place.

Regret was expressed at the decision of Mr. Vogel not to hold the office of president any longer, and as his successor could not be named, the appointment was left over until the next meeting.

The following were elected: Vice-president, Harry Evans; twelve council members, A. Dixon, L. F. Solly, C. W. Duthie, F. Reeves, J. James, F. Carberry, W. E. Christians, B. Young, A. Petach, E. G. Sanford, Major Ratrnat and General Poole; secretary, A. H. Peterson, re-elected.

NEW BRIDGE PLAN VETOED

Canadian Press
London, June 2.—Loud cheers yesterday evening greeted rejection by the Commons of a bill to provide for a bridge across Waterloo Bridge in London and replacing it with a new structure carrying six lanes of traffic. The vote was 322 to 154.

Controversy over the bridge has continued since 1923, when the structure subsided. Since then, it is said, it has cost the London County Council $1,000 a day to keep the bridge from falling down.

Special to The Times
London, June 2.—The annual general meeting of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce was held in the Agricultural building Tuesday evening with H. B. Vogel in the chair. The secretary presented the financial statement. The president gave a report of the year's activities.

Reports from chairmen of committees were presented and adopted. Correspondence was read, including a letter from the city stating the grant this year would be $50, instead of $100.

Election of officers then took place.

Regret was expressed at the decision of Mr. Vogel not to hold the office of president any longer, and as his successor could not be named, the appointment was left over until the next meeting.

SCHOOL FARES ON TAX LIST

Burnaby Board Asks Meaning of Income Tax Commissioner's Request

Canadian Press
West Burnaby, B.C., June 2.—Does this communication mean school children who are provided with street car tickets by the board to take them to and from school must have their names and addresses sent to Victoria so the income tax commissioner may add the amounts to their parents' incomes for purposes of taxation?

Trustee G. M. Harper put this query to Dr. S. J. Willis, superintendent of education, quoted a communication he had received from C. H. Paterson, commissioner of income tax, worded:

"With reference to payment for the transportation of children to and from school, although this does not constitute wages which would be subject to the 1 per cent deduction by employees, it is desirable that information respecting such payments be available to us for taxation purposes."

I understand that your department pays a portion of this transportation cost, and it is therefore requested that you inform the school boards to whom such payments are being made that it will be necessary for them to supply a list at the end of each calendar year showing the names and addresses and total amount paid to each person during the year."

Trustee J. F. Dickson thought it referred to persons who contracted to convey children to and from schools.

A few months ago it became known that Col. Lindbergh, then the happy father of a curly-haired son, had been working on a centrifugal apparatus designed to separate serum from the blood.

Observers, however, are disinclined to believe his whole attention is riveted on such a prosaic affair as a centrifuge. Curiosity has been whetted by instruction prohibiting employees from approaching the Lindbergh laboratory or attempting to engage the famous flier in conversation.

Col. Lindbergh, who was known as "Sailor" before his son was born, has obviously lost weight, but his countenance is cheerful as he eats luncheon in the institute's restaurant.

There is much speculation as to the nature of his work. In connection with the serum treatment, it was recalled that Col. Lindbergh's first association with the institute was when he flew to Quebec with some pneumonia serum provided by it for the stricken Floyd Bennett. It is thought he might be interested in developing a serum to be carried on polar flights, but that is only one of the guesses.

No one who knows will tell.

THE HOME MAKER

UNDER THE "THREE THOUSAND Families Scheme" of immigration negotiated by Canada with the British government about seven years ago there came out to the Dominion an Old Countryman who had served in the British Army. He settled somewhere on the western prairies in 1927 and has recently contributed a series of interesting impressions of his life out here. To The London Morning Post, The Regina Leader-Post is impressed with them and finds material for comment in the fact that this man appears to have become rooted in the soil and, notwithstanding the present difficult times, writes home cheerfully of conditions and enthusiastically of the western spirit.

"Neighbourliness" is the text under which this settler has written his impressions, and among other things he speaks in warm terms of the attitude of mutual help that prevails among Western Canada's rural population. While this may be a familiar story to prairie residents, it is one that has particular point in times like these. He says "few in Canada can truthfully say that good times were general in 1931, but," he cheerfully adds, "the larder is reasonably full, we have a big woodpile, and our feed corrals have at least a sufficiency for our livestock." Thus he thinks first of the essentials—food, warmth, and shelter for man and beast.

One sentence in this settler's impressions, however, is worth more than perfunctory consideration. "We expect nothing and desire nothing spectacular." It is obvious from this that he has no exaggerated dreams of a vast fortune as the reward of two or three seasons of intensive wheat mining. He is not interested in speculations. His feet are on the ground. He came to Canada to make a home, not wealth. But he has found both. He is able to provide himself and his family with the necessities of life and is happy in the doing of it.

A STUDY IN ECONOMICS

IT IS UNFORTUNATE TO PUT IT MILDLY, that the government at Ottawa has not accepted the recommendation of the leader of the opposition to organize a nation-wide programme on unemployment under the direction of the ablest minds of the country. If this had been done two years ago our situation to-day would have been vastly better than it is. Waiting for this condition to right itself, for "something to turn up" that would improve matters, has proven pitifully inadequate, judging by results as reflected in a study presented by professors of economics at the annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association which was held last week in Toronto and is featured in a recent issue of The Financial Post.

The report was compiled by Professor Gilbert E. Jackson, Professor H. M. Cassidy and A. G. Heakes of the University of Toronto faculty from statistics of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. It is based on eight major groups of Canadian industry, namely, manufacturing, logging, mining, communications, transportation, construction services and trade. Agriculture is not included. According to the census, these eight groups comprise seventy-four per cent of the total of all broadwings in Canada apart from agriculture.

The compilation indicates that the number of unemployed workers rose from an all-year average of 164,000 for 1929 to an average of 497,000 throughout 1931. The low months for unemployment each year are in the summer, the minimum for the three-year period being 38,633 in August, 1929. The highest occur in the winter season, with the 1929 peak of 289,891 in January. For 1931 the low was 211,578 in July, with a high of 395,869 in December. For 1931 the low was 442,719 in September with the high of 577,473 in December. Since the latter date, the rise in unemployment has been startling, with 677,377 in January, 1932; 708,694 in February; and 726,594 in March. Instead of showing the expected seasonal decline from the winter peak, the spring of 1932, so far as returns are available, shows the reverse, with more workers than ever being laid off.

In percentages the professors' detailed tables may be abridged as follows to show the range of fluctuations and the general trend of unemployment:

If there is one inescapable deduction from the foregoing returns, it is that of the utter futility of all political efforts so far to bring any fundamental amelioration. In the 1930 federal election campaign, Mr. Bennett's cry across the land was that unemployment was the Dominion government's responsibility. He was the one who held a magic key for the solution of unemployment, and if he were elected to power he would at once use it to the end that every man should have his rightful due—a job. Mr. Bennett was elected on his promises and now the professors' figures indicate that unemployment, instead of being cut down, is actually three times as great as when he was making his generous platform promises.

In the fall of 1930 the emergency session of Parliament was called to solve unemployment. The chief means resorted to by Mr. Bennett at this special session and in the following year was that of jacking up the tariff to new heights. The manufacturing industries, particularly, were in this way to be stabilized; with competing imports virtually excluded, factories were to be enabled to turn full steam ahead and provide work for all those who had the right to jobs in the western spirit.

Sadly disillusioning, however, to Mr. Bennett and those in the country who pinned their hopes on his theories, are the statistics covering what has actually happened. The manufacturing industries were the special object of Mr. Bennett's solicitude by way of higher protection, offered as the one sure way of revival for them. But the returns now show that despite this unprecedented protection accorded them, the increase of unemployment, both in volume and percentage, in the manufacturing industries is greater than for any other industrial group. Mr. Plunkett, back from Ottawa, thinks Mr. Bennett with his policies, is a wonder. It is to wonder.

"LIKE FRIGHTENED RABBITS"

EVERYWHERE MEN FLY TO NEW tariffs and restrictions, to nationalist policies domestic currencies, parochial purchasing and personal豪華—like frightened rabbits each scurrying to his own burrow."

Such is the remark of Sir Arthur Salter, K.C.B., in the conclusion of his "Recovery," a new book on the world breakdown that is receiving an unusual amount of attention on both sides of the Atlantic, because of its author's eminence. He is one of Britain's outstanding financial advisers and has been one of her chief representatives at international conferences since the war.

Lloyd George at the first of the week expressed the same thought in the concrete terms to be expected of him, when he said:

The nations of the world are more like men struggling in the bottom of a well, who are more intent on trampling each other down in order to have a foothold to keep their own lips above water than on seeking to co-operate in order to help each other and themselves out of the pit.

So ridiculous appears the whole international aspect under the reputedly intelligent homo sapiens that Sir Arthur concludes: "Surely, it is for the moment only."

He believes this apprehensive and defensive world needs now above all the qualities it seems for the moment to have abandoned—courage and magnanimity. We are, if we could but grapple with our fate, the most fortunate of the generations of men. In a single lifetime, science has given us more power over nature, and extended further the range of vision of exploring mind, than in all recorded history. But we have not overcome the illogical instinct of running "like frightened rabbits."

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BRITAIN'S TARIFF

Everyman

The policy of the government is dominated in advance by the Ottawa Conference, and, judging from the preparations that are being made by industry to make its representations felt, and by the governments of the Dominions to extract from Great Britain the greatest possible measure of advantage with the minimum concessions on their part, Ottawa may become the centre of highly complicated intrigue, none of it creditable to the idea of co-operation with a British Commonwealth of Nations. It is almost certain that despite the careful calculations of the Imperial Economic Committee, and the enormous quantity of memoranda which is already being prepared and circulated, the conference may reach no effective conclusions, the task of reconciling all interests on a purely mercenary basis being beyond human capacity.

FOUNTAIN PEN QUOTA

The Border Cities Star

Mark down another loss for the sky-high tariff scheme of the United States. Last year fountain pens to the value of $400,000 were shipped from the States to France. The pens and automatic pencils from America had won great favor with the French customers.

Now France and Germany have come to an understanding, and France is placing a quota on fountain pens to be shipped into the country. It is the French way of restricting imports and giving more favorable advantages to one country. Germany and France have made an agreement about fountain pens and automatic pencils. The United States was not consulted about the matter at all.

As has been said so many times if the United States will not allow other countries to sell goods in America, then United States industries can not very well hope to monopolize overseas markets.

CAPT. ROBERT DOLLAR.

The Christian Science Monitor

The world will remember Capt. Robert Dollar as a man who proved outstandingly that obstructions obstruct only when you let them. At fifty-six he bought his first ship, and thereafter became the greatest American operator of passenger liners. When foreign companies appeared to be taking over American-Oriental shipping, he began building the fleet that now dominates with nineteen liners crossing the Pacific. When crew laws, wages, precedent, and prohibition seemed to make round-the-world cruises impossible for American ships, he built up the most successful all-the-year service in existence—running his steamers dry. Where there was no developed freight business, he developed it. Where there was nothing to develop, he refitted an unloaded ship by buying a cargo of the onions or ivory some other part of the world would be glad to get. He worked to keep happy, kept happy to work. He could not get over the idea that the world is a grand place—for any body willing to work.

By H. B. W.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL POOLEY, in a recent speech up-island, blamed the world depression on Russia, because it had refused to follow the general procedure of civilized nations, according to The Colonist. This is indeed enlightening and shows evidence of deep study. Most of the economists who views I have read have such weird ideas on the cause of the depression. Most of them, poor fellows, imagine in their ignorance that the conflagration of the world's wealth in the war had something to do with the depression. Nearly all of them hold that the inability of half the world to purchase from the other half because of its insuperable debts is a considerable factor in the present situation. They all suspect in their confusion that the refusal of the other half to take any goods from the first half in payment of those debts might have some bearing on the case. They have the idea, these foolish experts, that the attempt of every nation to export more than it imports and the complete stagnation of world trade under the load of tariffs, the decline, for example, of British Columbia's lumber sales and the drop in metal prices might, in some remote way, affect the problem.

HOW CHEERING, therefore, to find that it is all much simpler than that, all perfectly obvious to the economists across the Bay, all due to the wretched Bolsheviks. But let the economists across the Bay and governments everywhere get down on their knees and thank heaven for the wretched Bolsheviks, for someone to blame it on. If the Bolsheviks weren't handy people might blame the governments and economists, because nowadays you never know what people will believe. Sometimes they will even believe the gentlemen whom they elect.

NOW THAT we have discovered what is wrong, now that the Bolsheviks have been shown to be responsible for our misery and unemployment (having no unemployment themselves, which is the crowning offence against civilization), the thing to do is to attack Russia by force of arms as soon as possible. Japan, under a sensible military government, seems quite likely to provide the opportunity, by opening the attack. All the western nations have to do is to join in and help her. Then, when we have got a world war well under way there will be no more trouble about our present debts. They will all disappear, all government bonds everywhere will be worthless since we shall need all our income to pay interest on the new war debt, and then, when it is all over Russia, will pay for everything, just as Germany is paying so completely for the last war. And,

Miss Nuthall is an established national champion. The eighteen-year-old Miss Stammers in her brilliant three weeks' career has won two tournaments, picked up a county championship title and blotted four established reputations.

Could she beat Betty? That is what everyone had been asking, and they all go on asking it because the nature of the actual contest told them nothing. The Fates which had been handing out nothing but pretty smiles to the new hope suddenly took a frown in the proceedings.

Miss Stammers was sitting about in the lounge until it was time to change to tennis togs. Then, ten minutes before she was due in court she went to the dressing room. Her tennis bag with her clothes was missing.

Premier Says Ideal Is For All Parts of Empire to Benefit in Trade

London, June 2.—Premier Bennett, who yesterday evening addressed 1,700 persons assembled here at the annual banquet of the Western Ontario Conservative Association, in his private railway car, said in his speech at the banquet he stood firmly on his government's policy of high tariffs and anti-dumping duties.

"We did it then (soon after assuming power) and we would do it again tomorrow," the Premier said.

AGAINST INFLATION

Mr. Bennett scored advocates of monetary inflation and those who attacked the stability of Canadian financial institutions. Canada, he said, need have no fear of bank failures, of which there had been 2,000 in the United States in the past year. There had not been one bank failure in Canada. Canadian banks were sound and would continue sound, he declared.

Holding a crisp one dollar bill in his hand, he attacked those who suggested turning to the money printing presses to end distress. He cited the behavior of the German mark after the war as an instance of inflation's consequences.

He declared the people of the Dominion were better off than those of any other nation in the world.

The Prime Minister spoke briefly of the forthcoming Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference. Canada, he said, would go to the conference with the thought that all component parts of the British Empire must reap real benefits from it.

"In July, next month," he said, "we will gather together as partners to see how, as far as possible, we may keep our trade within this partnership. We comprise the greatest commonwealth of free peoples the world has ever known. We must trade to the advantage of one but of all. There must

Two Wounded When Boy Bandits Fight With Police Squad

"Don't kick him, shoot him," the youth is alleged to have said.

ONE MAN HIT

Constable McKenzie moved out into the front of the shop and behind the counter. The bandits with two guns turned his attention to the till. He was standing sideways to Constable Stevenson, who rushed out from the rear. As he did so the bandit turned around and fired his guns. Constable Stevenson fired, hitting him in the shoulder.

As Stevenson opened fire, Constable McKenzie ducked behind the counter, drawing his revolver.

"Let's go," shouted the second bandit, and they both turned toward the door. One man shot the light out in the centre of the room and, with the three guns blazing, the two men ran out.

Constable McKenzie fired one shot as they were leaving, and Constable Stevenson followed them out as other shots were fired. The presence of the other persons in the small store caused him to hold his fire until he got outside.

As the bandit car swung off down the street, Stevenson sent one bullet after them.

CHASE STARS

Attracted by the shooting, another police car swung around the corner from Fairfield Road carrying Inspector Jack McLellan at the wheel. Detective Walter Calwell and Chief Thomas Heale.

The chief and inspector saw the men firing into the store from the street. Uncertain at first as to the identity of the gunners, since the police were also dressed in plain clothes, they held their fire. As they raced by the store, the officers ran out and then took after the bandit car.

Inspector McLellan stepped the police car up to full speed, and chased the other car down Irving Road towards the waterfront.

As the machines neared Hollywood Crescent, one of the bandit-pair opened fire at the police car, and bullets spattered the front of the machine.

NEARLY OVERTURNED

At breakneck speed the cars took the turn at Hollywood Crescent, the bandit car nosediving, hitting. With his head out the right front window, Detective Calwell opened fire. After emptying two guns at the fleeing car, he felt a sting in the right arm, but borrowed Inspector McLellan's gun and continued to blaze away.

One bullet from the detective's gun punctured the left rear tire of the bandit car. Another missed the gas tank by two inches, and a third ploughed into the body, but did not go through, and two others went through the rear window.

At fifty miles an hour the cars continued along Hollywood Crescent, but the bandits missed the continuation of the highway along King George Terrace and went down the road leading to the Chinese cemetery.

POLICE CAR HIT

In the fusillade from the bandits, the police car had had one light extinguished. The bullet which struck Calwell apparently was deflected by the front of the detector, and but for the angle it hit might have gone through the windshield.

Another bullet caromed off the ground and went through the mud-guard.

Nearing the end of the road at the water's edge, the bandit car lost the light of their car. Hämpered by the loss of one headlight the police missed it for a few seconds as it swung to the left. The police car turned to the right, but was back on the track in a few seconds and found the bullet-riddled machine abandoned on a lane below King George Terrace. The chase occupied the car about three or four minutes, and extended about three-quarters of a mile.

After leaving their car, the youths, one of whom was apparently weakened from loss of blood, must have made their way over the rocks and through the bushes toward the top of Gonzales Hill.

Meanwhile police reserves had been called to the district. Col. J. H. McMullen, provincial police commissioner, came with a squad supplementing the city force. Systematically the wooded area was scoured, but hundreds of citizens flocked to the scene when attracted by the shooting, and hampered the search considerably.

HELPED UP YOUTH

The bandits were next seen near the car on Gonzales Hill. Two boys, Graham Chambers, 17, and Oliver Humphrey Toms, 22, of Windsor Road, were seeking botanical specimens when the gunmen suddenly appeared beside them from the bushes.

They were ordered to put up their hands and lost no time in complying when the guns were shoved in their faces. Chambers had noticed that they appeared tired and somewhat afraid.

"We've just knocked over a drug store and we don't know how to get down off the hill. Show us the way," he continued.

"You're going to do a thing like that," Chambers replied.

ASKS FOR "BREAK"

"Well, my buddy's hurt, give us a break and show us how to get down," he replied, smacking them with the gun.

Without any alternative, the boys showed the gunners the way to Sycamore Lane, which leads to Beach Drive. The bandits made the boys promise not to "give them away," but as soon as they had gone, Chambers went to the nearest house on King George Terrace and telephoned the Oak Bay police.

The police hunt then was directed toward the section of the hill, but it is well-known and the bandits made good their escape for the time-being. The search continued throughout the night.

The bandit car, a "drive yourself," hired from Ernie Hill's garage, View Street, was taken back to police headquarters after the punctured tire was changed.

There were two bullet holes in the rear window, one mark on the body near the gas tank and one near the top. A bullet was found in the rear seat and there was a spot of blood on the right front door. Mr. Hill stated the car had been hired at 12.10 o'clock yesterday. He furnished police with a description of the two youths who hired the car.

After the exchange of bullets in Poirier's store, the place resembled a shambles. The bandits' bullets had shattered a large glass globe in the centre of the shop, torn through a showcase on the wall, smashing bottles of medicine in its course and the front window was shattered by the parting salvo from the pair.

FESTIVAL DATES FOR 1933 ARE SET

Next year's musical festival will be held from Tuesday, April 4, to Saturday, April 8, almost three weeks earlier than the recent festival. These dates ought to be respected by other organizations in the city," said Harold Beckwith, chairman of the festival committee.

Both the festival and the other attractions had suffered from these clashes, he stated, and it was up to the loyal organizations in Victoria to see to it that no event during this year's festival, W. H. Munro, president of the organization, and George J. Dyke, also strongly urged the festival dates next year be respected by local organizations.

SEVENTY ENTER B.C. GOLF PLAY

Bob Morrison and Jack Mason, Victoria, Compete in Provincial Tournament

Vancouver, June 2.—Seventy players have entered for the British Columbia amateur golf championships, the qualifying round of which will be played at the Point Grey course to-morrow. Two eighteen-hole rounds will be played on Friday to be followed by match play on Saturday and Sunday with the thirty-six-hole final on Monday.

Harold Brynjolfson, who won the title last year at Uplands, will be playing to-morrow with Dick Moore, former champion of Qualicum, Jack Mason and Bob Morrison are over from Victoria, and the players from the first round with A. E. J. Jericho, while Ken Black will go round with Morrison, one of the British Columbia team who played in the interprovincial match in Montreal last summer.

Cecil Coville, late of Marine Drive but now of West Point, will be one of the starters. He will accompany Jack Fraser, Shaughnessy champion, in to-morrow's match.

NEW CABINET IS SWORN IN

Yesterday evening Baron Wilhelm von Gayl was named Minister of the Interior. Kurt Schleicher, Defence; Baron Friedrich Eder von Braun, Agriculture and Eastern Relief, and Baron Eltz von Reubenhahn, Transportation and Posts.

DICTATORSHIP ANTICIPATED

The possibility of a virtual military dictatorship in Germany during the life of the Reichstag was seen by some political observers to-day. These observers pointed out that the new cabinet would in all likelihood be unable to secure a vote of confidence in the Reichstag if it were convened.

They predicted President von Hindenburg would continue to "summon" the Reichstag to meet.

Such agreements, the report says, would be made with the intention of securing the support of the Reichstag.

REPUTATION OF PARTIES

Reputation of the cabinet by the Centrist Party, to which Count von Papen himself belonged, and by the Bavarian People's Party yesterday evening was taken as an indication of what the Reichstag would do if a vote of non-confidence were proposed.

Other critics accused the German Nationalists in accepting a "blue stocking cabinet" devoid of any Labor representation. It is the first cabinet since the establishment of the Republic after the war in which the Socialists and Centrists have not participated.

There is not a Lieutenant of Adolf Hitler, National Socialist, Fascist, leader in the new administration—but President Hindenburg, Hitler and General Kurt von Schleicher are authoritatively accepted as seeing eye to eye.

Although Count von Papen, whose activities in 1915, when he was military attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, was a member of the "blue stocking cabinet" devoid of any Labor representation. PORT ARTHUR WOMAN SLAIN

(Canadian Press)

Port Arthur, Ont., June 2.—Mrs. Peter, forty-eight years of age, early to day was found dead in a refreshment booth which she had been conducting in the north end of the city, at a street car loop. Police state it was an apparent case of killing for the purpose of robbery, a $10 or more cash known to have been in her possession.

The body was discovered by a street car man who went into the booth before going out on his early morning run.

The woman and her daughter had been operating the booth. At 10 yesterday evening Mrs. Ptaszuk went on duty.

The mother on such occasions was accustomed to keep the place open until midnight or 1 a.m., when she would go to bed in a small room off the booth.

It is believed that some time before the closing hour she was shot down. The body was found slumped in a chair, the head dropping in such a manner that the body could be seen only by looking under the counter.

Police were conducting an investigation this afternoon.

Mrs. Jackson Gains B.C. Golf Final

(Canadian Press)

Vancouver, June 2.—Mrs. E. F. Jackson of the Uplands Club, Victoria, in the fifty-six-hole final for the British Columbia ladies' golf championship, Friday at the Quilchena course, in the semi-finals this morning. Mrs. Hutchings defeated Miss Norah King, 5 and 4, while Mrs. Jackson won from Mrs. W. M. Stilcock, Quilchena, 4 and 3.

Sweepstake Action Taken at Nanaimo

Nanaimo, June 2.—Lionel Beyer Poole, counsel for Louis Chappelieu, resident of the Crescent, has started an action against Mrs. Jessie Chappelieu, wife of his client, who received word that she won a horse on the Army and Navy sweepstake drawn for in eastern Canada.

ARREST MADE AT GANGPLANK

Japanese Wanted as Witness at Trial Taken By Police in Vancouver

Canadian Press

New Westminster, June 2.—Fast action by Chief of Police John Cameron and Detective Jack Allen resulted in the arrest of Shintara Toda, Japanese mill foreman, on the gangplank of the N.M. liner Helan Maru at the Terminal Dock in Vancouver at noon today. The ship sailed for Japan twenty minutes later.

Shintara Toda had in his pocket a transportation ticket for Yokohama, but he was brought back here and is being held as a material witness in the trial of K. Tsukamoto, charged with shooting his wife with a pair of stockings.

Chief Cameron lost no time when he learned Shintara Toda was not at his place of employment at Fraser Mills when detectives called there this morning, and made a quick run to the Vancouver wharf on the chance the Japanese intended leaving for the Orient to-day.

That Mrs. Tsukamoto had come to her death by strangulation at the hands of her husband while he was temporarily insane was the verdict of the coroner's jury at the inquest here to-day on the woman's death. The body was found in bed yesterday with a pair of silk stockings wrapped tightly around her neck.

Following the Inquest Tsukamoto appeared before Magistrate H. L. Edmonds on a charge of murder and was remanded for one week.

Hollywood Goes to Dogs and Ducks

By ROBERT GRANDON

"Dear Bob Grandon," comes a letter. "Can you tell me something about the animal actors of the screen? Are they paid and what about them? And how are they handled?"

Well, the answer is . . . There's no. In other words, it all depends. Some of them are so closely associated with their owners that they have become a part of the family. There's Tarzan, Ken Moreland's milk-white steed; and Tom Mix's Tony . . . See one and you'll see the other . . . And there was Silver King, the beautiful mount belonging to the late Fred

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Mr.
And
Mrs.—How Can Husband Cure His Wife of Spending?
Bogies With Which Jealous Wife Scares Herself May Become Fact—Does Ring Prove Fiance's Love?

DEAR MISS DIX—When I married I had my bank account put in both my wife's and my name. A fixed sum was arrived at for living expenses, but I have never been able to induce her to keep within it. I have been a good man for 10 years. I have made over $50,000. To show for it I have a happy family, a good and well-educated, a nice, well-earned home but mighty little else. If a wife thinks she is economy personified and is ready for a scrap at the mention of money, the husband must choose between being a tightwad with an unhappy, complaining wife who will very likely divorce him, or be a sap, even as I. What can the man do who is married to a spender? A. S.A.

Answer—Nothing, unless he has the courage to cut off her credit and give her a fixed income and force her to live within it. Obviously, if a husband refuses to pay his wife's bills merchants will not sell her goods, and thus he is automatically protected.

Of course, this takes a great deal more hardihood and nerve than the average man possesses, because it is humiliating to him to have to publish his wife's weakness and it puts him in an attitude that seems misery to those who do not know the circumstances and it raises a merry war at home. For the extravagant woman will not listen to reason. With her, spending is not only a vice. It is a mania, an obsession, and no consideration of her husband's welfare or of her own will stay her hand.

Dearer to her than her husband's love and respect are "bargains." She can no more resist anything that is marked down from $20 to $19.75 than a drunkard can a bottle of whisky. Shopping is an orgy with her, and she is never happy except when she is buying things. To keep up with the Joneses and live in a finer house than she can afford and have a better car than she can pay for is the animating impulse of her life, and to gratify this she will work her husband to death without a qualm of remorse.

As you say, the only way that husbands of such women can live in peace with them is to minister to their ruling passion, but it seems to me that a man who buys his wife's amiability and tolerance of him at the price of his whole life's work is getting a pretty poor bargain. I should want a better run for my money than that. I shouldn't like to think that my wife's regard for me was purely mercenary.

Perhaps the spender wife would divorce her husband if he refused to let her wreck him with her extravagance. Perhaps, on the contrary, she would have more respect for him if he had backbone enough to curb her spending and make her behave like an intelligent adult instead of a spoiled child. Women are like that, you know. They will make a doormat of a man if he will permit it, and then they will turn and kiss his feet if he has spunk enough to make them behave.

Personally, I have always thought that the man was very foolish as well as weak who let his wife ruin him with her extravagance. For in the end he always loses her as well as his money, and when that is gone she doesn't love him for the sacrifices he has made for her, she reproaches him with the ruin that she brought upon him.

Many men think that they are being kind when they let their families live up to their incomes. They say, as you do, that they have given their wives and children all sorts of luxuries and indulgences, even if they have saved nothing for the future, but in reality they have done their families as cruel a wrong as malice itself could invent. For they have fostered tastes and habits in their children that they have not the means to indulge, and when the crash comes and father dies or loses his job, then they are left destitute. And none is so miserable as those who have seen better days.

And there is old age for yourself and for your wife. What is to become of you when you are no longer able to work? Being a parasite on your children or the poorhouse? All the humiliating ways of dependence. That is the future of those who do not lay up something for their lean years.

I think I would stand for a lot of tears and sulking and whining from an extravagant wife before I would let her precipitate that fate on me if I were a man. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband stares at every girl he meets. Often he will smile at them or say something to me about their being pretty or attractively dressed, etc. I object to this very much. I have been married eighteen months and I see so much of husbands loving someone else that I have got to the point where I don't trust any man or woman, and I am very miserable. LUCY.

Answer—I should think you would be miserable with a mean, catty, jealous disposition like that, and I bet your husband is miserable, too.

For it must be a terrible thing to have a wife who is so suspicious and evil-minded that she sees something wrong in her husband even glancing at a girl and who makes scenes every time he notices another woman who isn't ninety years old and tottering on the verge of the grave.

But what are you going to do about it? You can't lock your husband up in a room where you will be the only feminine occupant, and he would certainly get sick and tired of you if you did. The world is full of pretty women and young women and attractive women, and wherever he goes, on the street or in business or in society he is bound to see them and be thrown into contact with them. And if they are good-looking and charming there is nothing that you can do that will prevent him observing the fact.

So don't you see how silly you are to make yourself miserable over something that you can't prevent? Can't you realize that a man can see a woman and admire her face and form and clothes without having any more personal feeling about the matter than he has about a pretty view out of the window? After all, your husband had seen thousands of other girls before he saw you. He selected you out of the number for his wife, and that should convince you that you are his choice.

But let me tell you this: When you are so unreasonable as to be jealous of every woman that your husband sees you are doing the very thing that will disillusion him with you and make him take a real interest in these other girls. For you are making yourself a jailer to him, some body that is always spying on him and to whom he has to lie to avoid getting into trouble, and there isn't a man alive who doesn't resent that.

Furthermore, watching a man does no good, because he can always outwit you if he wants to. The best way to hold a husband and keep him from noticing other women is to trust him and make yourself as attractive to him that you will always be his best girl. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been engaged for eight months. My fiance has not given me an engagement ring—in fact, has not mentioned it. Not having a ring does not cause me to love him less, only it is getting embarrassing for my girl friends to ask me where it is and if I really am engaged. Should I talk to him about it or just wait? PERPLEXED.

Answer—Some men are dumb about things, and the chances are that your fiance has never even thought about what a sacred and wonderful thing her engagement ring is to a girl, so you had best tell him about it. If you don't want to do this, however, just tell your friends that it is none of their affair. Don't let what other people think or say make any difference to you. DOROTHY DIX.

Postage Stamps

IV—FAR AND WIDE
Some postage stamps contain maps. A map of the world appears on a stamp issued by Canada in 1898. Parts of the British Empire are printed in dark color on this map.

Irish stamps contain a map of Ireland. They show the outline of the entire island, though they are issued by the Irish Free State which does not include the northern section. Words on Irish stamps are printed in the native language.

Cuba has a stamp with an outline of the island and also a part of Florida and other shores in the region.

Australia has a stamp with the outline of the continent and a kangaroo in the middle!

San Domingo and Panama are among the other lands which have issued map stamps.

The empire of Austria-Hungary is no more, but we may still obtain stamps which were used while the empire existed. Among these stamps are some which show soldiers firing guns and bayonets on their horses and artillermen making ready to fire cannon.

The first British stamps were issued on sheets which had to be cut apart with scissars or knives; but almost all modern stamps are perforated. Rows of little round holes make it simple to tear the stamps apart.

The first British stamps were printed or "stamped" by hand, but modern stamps are turned out by great presses. A single press may print thousands of stamps in a minute.

Stamps of Japan are colorful and interesting. A Japanese woman in native costume appears on one stamp.

Others contain pictures of Japanese Fujiyama—the famous and beautiful volcano of Japan, appears on several kinds of stamps. Perhaps most curious is the one-and-a-half cent stamp which carries the image of a hen.

Old China has put out stamps of many kinds. One shows "The Temple of Heaven." Others bear pictures of dragons and junks. (A junk is a small, flat-bottomed vessel commonly used by Chinese.) Another Chinese stamp, marked "15 cts," is an imitation of a biplane flying over the Great Wall.

What would the men who built that wall have thought if they had seen an airplane whizzing overhead?

subjects of this sign are reticent, and for this reason uncommunicative.

Advertising is believed to be well directed while this configuration prevails. Political affairs will be well directed.

The legal profession is subject to a plan-

tary government which seems to promise and lovemaking. College students may be extraordinarily susceptible.

This should be a profitable sway for members of bands and orchestras.

Children born on this day probably will be wise, patient and highly intelligent. Many subjects of this sign are reticent, and for this reason uncommunicative.

King George V of England was born on this day, 1865. Others who have celebrated their birthday include: Ned Kelly, bushranger;

Andrew Carnegie, steel magnate;

Confederate leader, 1868; and W. M. F. Petrie, Egyptologist.

All assessments in the farming communities of Hungary are to be lowered by the government.

SO THEY WILL GET THE POINT

He looks mightily in earnest, doesn't he? Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy was expounding the principles of Fascism to 10,000 youthful followers when this unusual picture was taken. The unusual features are the celebratory nature of the founding of Rome.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

WHEN CHILDREN TIRE EASILY

You stop your work and look anxiously at Johnny. He is tired again. You know it from the way his shoulders sag, the way he lolls over every chair he comes to, his pasty color, his dull eyes.

What are you going to do? Ask him what is the matter? Scold him for not eating more? Get out the bottle of tonic? Write to the teacher and ask her to excuse him from his home work?

Probably, or at least some of them. One thing is almost inevitable and that is your calling Johnny's attention to the fact that he is tired.

I shouldn't do that. I should do my talking to myself. "Have I been making him do too many errands or given him tasks beyond his strength?" might well be the first question you put to yourself. But the chances are that you will discard this as the probable cause of his tiredness. He has not to walk to school and two or three errands on top of that and the few little things you require his help with at home should not exhaust a healthy boy of ten.

That decided, other things present themselves. Is he getting enough sleep? You count it up. He is a coxcomb and generally does not get settled until 10 o'clock. Then he is up at half-past six, has breakfast, and is not enough? No, that is not enough. He should sleep from eight or eighty-thirty at the latest, to seven. Perhaps more if he gets "nervously tired." And fifteen minutes at noon or after school to lie flat on his back quietly.

IS HIS DIET ADEQUATE?

Food is now, you suspect you are content to say, to be getting on a good nourishing variety of vegetables (lots of them); milk to drink; a little meat once a day, eggs or fish? Perhaps he is getting too many eggs and they make him "bilious" for some children cannot digest them very well. Stewed fruit, cereals, bread and butter?

All this you ask yourself, and again you find a ready answer. No, Johnny wants flap-jacks for breakfast; he won't touch cereals or milk; he shivers at the sight of almost every vegetable but loves pork and beans, which you have about every other day. Potatoes and macaroni he also loves, also hot biscuits and ham gravy and pie.

I agree. Well, that is one thing to be remedied at once. Oh, no, do not distract him with a large meal, though the pie could be dispensed with—but do not let him have those things too often or to the exclusion of the necessary foods. Do not forget the milk, please.

Now how does he stand, or sit? On the middle of his spine? You draw a mental picture of him in school slouched down with his chin on his chest or his shoulders suspended like a second story extension over his desk. How does he breathe? Does he ever draw a deep breath with his air down to the bottom of his lungs? No you know very well he does not.

Your self conversation has crystallized your thought. Now you know where you are.

"Johnny, stand up, dear," you say brightly. "Oh, no, like a soldier, see?" You press his hips forward, his stomach in and his chin up. "What a handsome fellow you are when you stand like that! Chest out! Breathe deep! Again!"

Well, that is the beginning of the exercise trail. Now for the vitamin trail, the sleep trail, and the happiness trail. That combination should put roses in his cheeks and flesh on his bones.

IN NEW FEATURE AT THE CAPITOL

Claudia Bell in "Scandal for Sale," the new picture, which opened this afternoon at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day engagement.

NEW DRAMA AT
THE CAPITOL"Scandal For Sale" Opens
To-day With Rose Hobart and Pat O'Brien in Leads

One of the season's most highly dramatic screen plays has just been booked for showing at the Capitol Theatre.

The picture is "Scandal for Sale," the Universal drama which follows the career of a professional scandal-monger who prostitutes his profession in a mad search for sensational news. Though in no sense typical of newspaperdom, this man has risen to a place of power on a New York daily, and exercises a tremendous power over the lives of those surrounding him. The story is by Eusebio Guiavretti, a New York editor, and was very successful as a novel under the title: "Hot News."

The role of this ruthless city editor is played by Charles Bickford, Hollywood's tempestuous red-head who is said to display the greatest characterization of his career. He is featured in the picture with Rose Hobart and Pat O'Brien, popular players of the screen, who are seen respectively as Bickford's wife and a star reporter on the sensation-seeking newspaper.

In the portrayal of this character Woolsey reveals a definite passion on a woman's behalf, a great deal of transvestism, while his humorous adventures in following side-shows around the country, conducting auction sales, telling fortunes, selling patent medicines and operating shell games, afford him great opportunity for the patter and wise-cracking that have made him famous.

DOMINION THEATRE

Completing the roster of famous personalities in Paramount's "This Is the Night" now showing at the Dominion Theatre, Thelma Todd recently was assigned one of the most important roles in the musical comedy.

The blonde actress shares honor with Lily Damita, Charles Ruggles, Roland Young and Cary Grant, the latter recently placed under contract by Paramount following a meteoric career at Paramount.

The blonde actress shares honor with Lily Damita, Charles Ruggles, Roland Young and Cary Grant, the latter recently placed under contract by Paramount following a meteoric career at Paramount.

In "Sunshine Susie," coming to the Empire Theatre, Harry Carey and other popular screen players are featured in "Law and Order." University-trained in the early West, at the Columbia Theatre.

This picture, which is said to give a most realistic representation of America's wild frontier of a generation ago, has taken its place as one of the most absorbingly interesting "Westerns" in the history of the screen, and presents Hudson and Carey in the first of a series of pictures which are played by Russell Simpson, Raymond Hatton, Andy Devine and Russell Hopton.

The scenes of "Law and Order" are laid in the early border town of Tombstone, Arizona, and Hudson is seen as the United States Marshall who sets forth to "clean up" the settlement.

EMPIRE THEATRE

One of the most attractive costumes worn by Pola Negri in her first RKO radio picture, "Song of the South," is at the Empire Theatre.

Features her favorite color combination, black and silver. A jacket of silver cloth and a flowing skirt of black velvet are used in a very fetching lounging suit.

Teeth Suffer From Diet of Acids, Tests Reveal

Deduction Based on Survey Conducted in Hawaii

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Conditions of diet and nutrition vary throughout the world in different nations. Hence careful studies of such diets in relation to the development of teeth can afford interesting information as to the factors responsible for dental decay.

In Hawaii, fruits, vegetables and fresh seafood are to be had in abundance at all seasons of the year. The population includes representatives of all the human races living in groups in close proximity and yet maintaining racial customs.

Advantage was taken of this opportunity for a comparative study of teeth by Drs. Martha R. Jones, Nila P. Larsen and George P. Pritchard, who made some extremely interesting observations. They examined 1,761 pre-school children and found decay of the teeth in some of them a special type of odontoclasia. Of all the children examined, between 50 and 75 per cent at various ages up to six years had this condition.

In these children the enamel was soft in texture and easily scratched. The teeth were partially disintegrated and were found to have an extraordinarily large amount of cement substance in the enamel to decay.

Investigations have learned that it is not the tooth in responsibility on any one factor in the diet for some of the extraordinary disturbances that may take place in the human body.

The studies made in Hawaii reveal also the necessity for maintaining in the body a suitable alkaline reaction.

There is also involved the question of suitable use of the teeth in chewing food.

The government also renewed its yearly agreement with the Dominion Government in maintaining the offices of the Employment Service of Canada.

One of the company's subsidiaries have been completed.

An attached balance sheet showing the position of the company as at April 30, indicates that earnings for the period have been only slightly below those of the previous period, indicating that interest requirements have been earned. The company has a sixty-day period in which to correct the technical default which non-payment to-day brought about, and when arrangements regarding the subsidiary mentioned in the company's statement of to-night have been completed, it is possible that the arrears will be paid.

The balance sheet shows an increase in investments and relative decrease in deferred liabilities as shown by the company's financial statement and it is explained that this arises from acquisition of all the shares of the Thunder Bay Paper Company Limited, only half of which were owned when the annual statement of the Abitibi Company was compiled. Accounts of the Thunder Bay Company have not been consolidated with those of Abitibi.

A statement accompanying the balance sheet indicates that one of the company's "contingent and contractual liabilities" is "as guarantor of completion of plant of the Ontario Power Service Corporation Limited." No sum is shown as indicating the extent of the contingent liability.

It is understood that recent negotiations looking to the financing of the final construction stages of this Abitibi canyon power project are now nearing completion, but up to day no conclusion has been reached. Some time ago it was unofficially intimated that arrangements to this effect had been made in view of conditions prevailing in the money market at this time. These were being worked out by the Ontario Government in co-operation with the company. The nature of the government's co-operation in the matter was not revealed.

SAYS WORLD MUST GO ON

Way Out of Depression Will Be Found, Says Senator M. Lippens of Brussels.

Points to Britain, Which Has Risen Above Party Politics in Time of Crisis

"We are not disheartened; we are accustomed to these crises, although this is the worst that the world has experienced, but there will be a way out," said Senator Maurice Lippens of Brussels, former minister of transport and postmaster-general of Belgium, who is at the Empress Hotel to-day.

Senator Lippens, who has been making a tour of the North American continent studying economic conditions, is accompanied by Mme. Lippens and M. and Mme. L. Camu, also of Brussels.

"The world has got to go on, no matter how desperately it is assured," reflected Senator Lippens. "There is a psychological element in the present situation, which will eventually be overcome, and all will be right with the world once more, but it will take time."

"I must say I found a feeling of pessimism in the United States, which does not prevail to such an extent in the countries of Europe."

"There is no need for undue pessimism. There must ultimately be brought about a readjustment of the world's economic structure."

BELGIUM HIT HARD

Senator Lippens said that Belgium had been hard hit by the World War, and he fully appreciated the great sacrifices which had been made by France and Great Britain and other countries engaged in the war.

He referred particularly to Great Britain, which he claimed was setting an example to the rest of the world in the manner in which she was grappling with her problems.

He expressed his admiration for the British people, who had risen above party politics, one of the most remarkable elements of the British character, and he felt convinced they would soon emerge triumphantly. He deplored the intrusion of politics in the world situation.

"We are now returning home after spending several weeks in the United States," Senator Lippens said. "We hope to see much of Canada on our way east, and propose to stay over at Ottawa for a short time. We have greatly enjoyed our short stay in Victoria."

The party will leave to-day for the east.

ALL READY FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

New World's Records Predicted By R. McD. Taylor of Los Angeles; Here To-day Southern California City Prepared to Accommodate Half-million Visitors

"Everything is in readiness for the Olympic Games next month and Los Angeles is anticipating a record influx of visitors," said Russell McD. Taylor, director of the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles, who is in Victoria today with Mrs. Taylor, having arrived from the south by the Holland-American motorship De Duyf.

They will remain in the city for a week and are at the Empress Hotel. Other passengers by the Dutch ship registered here are Ralph E. Pigeon, well-known Los Angeles hosiery manufacturer, and Mrs. Pigeon.

"All Los Angeles is talking about the Olympic and we are here to spread the gospel," said Mrs. Taylor. "When the big show opens at the end of July the most noted athletes in the world will be assembled in Los Angeles. From the way some of the athletes are shaping up in the elimination contests it would appear that a number of the existing world records will be broken at this year's Olympiad."

"We hope to see a lot of you Canadians down there, especially as competitors but not as visitors."

"For us have a pretty fast sprinter here in Percy Williams, the Vancouver boy who made a name for himself and laurels for Canada in the Amsterdam Olympiad. We hope that he will be able to show his stuff at Los Angeles and to do well in his first competition."

Olympic Stadium, where the big track events will be staged, has seating accommodation for 110,000 people, and the great open-air swimming pool for the water events, has been completed."

Mr. Taylor said that one of the big features of the Olympic Games will be the Japanese entries, and it is expected that these athletes will make a good showing.

The attendance of visitors, he said, is expected to break all records. The hotelkeepers of Los Angeles are prepared to take care of peak loads and regional hotels will be available to accommodate any surplus."

Under normal conditions he thought the attendance at the Olympic Games would reach 500,000 people.

The metropolitan district of Los Angeles boasts a population of 2,250,000. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are making their second visit to Victoria in six years. They plan to make the return trip to Los Angeles by rail.

For the next three days they will be kept busy with an interesting programme, which will include addresses, Scout displays, a gala, marches and many other entertaining features.

For the camp fire on Saturday evening, all Scouts are reminded to bring a coat or waterproof and an electric torch.

PROGRAMME

The complete programme follows:

FRIDAY, JUNE 3

2 p.m.—Scouts assemble at Heywood Avenue football grounds.

2:15 p.m.—Address by Attorney-General, after which there will be intergroup competitions, tent pitching, first aid, sign language, etc.

URGES MAYOR BE REMOVED

Counsel at New York Inquiry Says Walker Violated Charter

Associated Press

New York, June 2.—Evidence which Samuel Seabury said constituted grounds for removal of Mayor James Walker from office was presented to the Hofstadter legislative committee yesterday.

The gray-haired committee counsel charged Walker had violated the city charter by holding bonds in a company which received a city contract for $43,556 worth of traffic lights.

"I say it is grounds for removal, and has been so held and is so provided in section 1388 of the city charter," Seabury told the inquiry board in stereo.

Mayor Walker himself, in Detroit, charged Seabury with "unfairness" and said the lawyer "well knew" that the bonds "came into my possession without any knowledge on my part of the company's business."

"Seabury knows," the mayor continued, "that these were bonds and not stocks of the company, and that they represented a mortgage on the company and not an interest in it."

Seabury's statement to the committee was the first in which he has filed charges against the mayor.

Among the day's witnesses was Dr. William H. Walker, the mayor's brother, to whom William J. Scanlon, who sold equipment to the city, said he paid more than $2,500 for medical services.

BIG BEAR KILLED

North Vancouver, June 2.—A 400-pound black bear, which for some days had caused considerable destruction to gardens in the Seymour Creek area near the old Lillooet trail, was shot by Sergt. Charles Gurr of the district police. Bruin, eight feet long, was one of the biggest bears seen in the vicinity of Seymour Creek for some time.
